We must fix our sights on places where the church is not yet, engaging in intercessory prayer, sacrificial giving, and physically going to and mobilizing others to reach those who have yet to hear the gospel.

Only six percent of Myanmar's population identifies as Christian. Yet, thanks to you, missionaries like Bill and Mill Kwon are starting churches in Myanmar, as well as among Myanmar immigrant populations in Thailand, Singapore, across Asia, and even into the west, including the USA.

As a result of the conflict in Syria, many Syrian-Armenian refugees are returning home to Armenia. Zareh Mangilikian and his family build relationships with the refugees and assist them as they settle in Yerevan, Armenia, by providing much-needed support through food, rent, clothing and skills training.

In order to make Christlike disciples among the people of Mongolia, where only two percent of the population is Christian, missionaries Sunny and Lisa Um braved frigid weather, learned to speak Khalkha and drilled a well to provide water for their community.

When West Africa leaders presented a challenge to minister to the people of Togo, a young pastor named Apolli volunteered. Within six months of beginning his ministry in Togo, Apolli started 23 churches, igniting a revival that continues today.
